Optimiste Marquis

AFTER growing some of the best fruit in NSW's Mudgee district and seeing local winemakers scooping up the medals with the wines that came from it, Steven and Sharlene Dadd took the plunge several years ago and decided to go into the wine-making business themselves. The Dadds have just released their first wines; including a Marquis from the excellent 2006 vintage – it's a beautifully smooth, flavoursome blend with signature blackberry flavours from the 50% Cabernet, nice ripe plum fruit from the 30% Merlot component and lifted aromas from the balance of Petit Verdot. The Dadds dedicated their Marquis to young son Marcus, whose inspiring struggle with deafness, they say, captures the spirit of hope and passion of the Optimiste label. Priced at $24.

Classic White

EVANS & Tate drew fruit from across the whole of the Margaret River region for their 2007 Margaret River Classic White, a wine that year after year showcases the crisp zestiness of the region's Semillon and Sauvignon Blanc.

Tropical fruit notes from the Sauvignon Blanc component and herbal gooseberry and nectarine from the Semillon make this an ideal wine for al fresco dining; one that's got "chuck another shrimp on the barbie" written all over it... so pay $18.99, gather some mates and do it.
